Some Stars Shine

Russell Stucky

Some stars shine a little brighter
Like lightning in the afternoon
Our eyes squint a little tighter
In a flash they're gone too soon
A thousand rooms stay glowing
While the summer rain is flowing

Memories of light, a spirit in the night
A mother and a child, delicate and wild

Encircled by the angels,
A woman of God is strong
Seeking the Truth in all its tangles
Always knowing right from wrong
She showers her neighbors with love
Her flaming heart is from above

Mother of books, knowledge in nooks
Queen of all words, singing with birds

A sweet country girl
But simple's not the word
Southern beauty, see her twirl
Standing out among the herd
Her kindness is a wellspring
Her grace will make us all sing

Lover of the Lord, the Father will reward
And we will hold her hand, some day in the sand
